Practice Manager, Life Sciences Commercialization

brunsn@svaconsulting.com 608.826.2010

Nick is the Practice Manager, Life Sciences Commercialization Launch Management with SVA Consulting.

He helps life sciences organizations successfully bring their first products to market. He partners with clients to deeply understand their organization, product, and strategy, then builds a clear roadmap to commercial launch. Nick's work spans from program and alliance management to system and vendor assessments, ensuring that every operational and technical element is aligned for a smooth and timely launch.

Once the strategy is defined, Nick guides clients through system implementation and process design, coordinating teams and vendors to keep projects on track and aligned with business objectives. His approach blends strategic planning with hands-on execution, giving clients confidence that their launch will meet regulatory requirements, support commercialization goals, and scale as their business grows.

Nick is recognized for his ability to bring structure to complex initiatives, align cross-functional stakeholders, and deliver practical solutions that reduce risk and drive results.
