

Are you looking for a speaker to come in and talk to your audience about what the world of technology can do to transform the group? Hi, I'm Bryan Bechtoldt. I'm the chief technology officer at SVA Consulting and one of my specializations is doing just that. Coming in and talking to people about how technology can change the way their organizations operate. We take a look at what's coming, we take a look at what's there, and we try to come together with a solution that really fits your needs and creates some sort of advantage for you in your marketplace. I think our differentiation, something that I really try to focus on, is how does that technology impact the organization itself? How has it actually transformed the individual lives of the people who are consuming it, because that's where technology really makes a difference. On the desktops and in the hands of the people who are trying to work with it. I'm Bryan Bechtoldt and I'd love to talk to your group about technology.