

What keeps you up at night? Are you afraid that you'll be a victim, like sixty-five percent of the organizations surveyed last year of cybercrime, malware or a breach? Are you worried that the right people, and only the right people have access to critical business and systems? My name is Clint Crigger, cybersecurity and GRC practice manager at SVA Consulting. I'd love to share with your organization or audience, real-world examples of how they can protect by motivating, encouraging, equipping and preparing them to win the battle against cybercrime. I do this from real-world experience that I had with NASA, Lockheed, Martin, Global Insurers, manufacturing, healthcare, the Department of Defense... and I do this in a way that they understand how they individually are important in defending against cybercrime and breach. If you'd like to have me speak to your organization, please contact speaker source at SVA.

Thank you.